- YOUTH CAMP AND CULTURE PROGRAM

Parents or service providers interested in a FREE four-day program for “at-risk” youth can contact the Peacemaking/Probation Department. Any youth who is currently “at-risk” for getting into trouble, or has ever been, at any time in the past, involved with the courts, or has had what can be considered “negative” police contact, is eligible for participation in this program. Funding comes entirely from the Department of Justice’s, Office of Juvenile Justice, Tribal Youth Program Grant. A limited number of youth can attend, and it will be first come first served, pending a completed and approved application to participate.

This program will introduce the youth to the outdoors, by presenting nature education, and wilderness survival skills, from a Native American cultural perspective. The talking circle, the teaching circle and various group teamwork challenges are a major component of this program. Participants will sleep in old-styled bent-sapling lodges. They will learn how to make a fire and cook their own food. All equipment is provided.

- MICHIGAN INDIAN LEGAL SERVICES PILOT PROJECT:

CRIMINAL DEFENSE AT LRBOI TRIBAL COURT

Michigan Indian Legal Services (MILS) and the Tribal Court are pleased to announce that MILS will begin offering assistance to criminal defendants in the Little River Band of Ottawa Indians Tribal Court. Starting now, MILS attorneys will be available to represent indigent defendants facing criminal charges as part of a year-long pilot project. The service will be available and free to those individuals who meet income eligibility and other requirements.

The purpose of the pilot project is twofold. First, MILS hopes to provide high quality representation by assisting clients through the system, providing necessary balance in an adversarial system. Second, through the experience of the pilot project, MILS hopes to be able to make an informed decision as to whether we should maintain the project at LRBOI, expand into other tribal courts, or end the program as part of the commitment to serving the native communities within Michigan. MILS will conduct an ongoing program evaluation with the help of clients and LRBOI Court staff.

Those Tribal Members facing criminal charges in the Tribal Court, will be notified of this project, and given MILS contact information at the first court hearing.

“Women. They have the power of generations. Women have the power to have children and not to have children.”
-- Cecilia Mitchell, MOHAWK
The Woman is not only the key to life; she is also the key to future generations. An Elder once joked that the Woman only needs the man for one night. We need to look at and respect the power of the Woman. She is special and we need to treat her that way.

Great Spirit, today, let me show the greatest respect to our Women.
